

First name:	Surname:	What motivated you to put yourself forward for election to the Branch committee?	What qualities, skills and experience do you think you'll bring to the Branch committee?
Mohamed	Ali	I have been fortunate enough to be part of an energetic and knowledgeable community with a reach spanning across the globe. I want to continue championing this community and help drive diversity and inclusion across the project management profession.	Bringing a perspective of a project professional in their early career, with a growing network of young adults. I'm also an Ambassador for Harambee (Jacobs' Black Employee Network), championing Black inclusion across all levels of the business and wider societal communities.
James	Buckley-Walker	I first joined the London Branch committee in 2020 after several years with the Contracts & Procurement SIG committee. I have very much enjoyed my last two years with the Branch, who have all been very welcoming and friendly, even limited to remote meetings. The committee has a great drive to promote APM, the 3P's and good causes like chartership and fellowship. I have also taken the lead on the higher education workstream, and this has provided me the opportunity to present to several universities about APM, the branch and new ways of project management. I have led several events over the past year to promote employability and provide career opportunities to students and would hope to continue this into next year.	I have almost 20 years' experience in project management, delivering large scale projects in the UK and Australia for both clients and contractors. I have particular expertise in procurement and contracting and spent several years with the C&P SIG. I am now a Partner of a Portfolio, Project & Programme Management consultancy based in London. We work across many sectors including science, health, higher education and sustainability. Our business is proudly very diverse and inclusive, and we are strong advocates of equality in the industry. I also lead on training and development programmes and am a MAPM Panel assessor. I believe my wealth and range of experience and my forward-thinking attitude to project management, diversity and training can continue to be a great asset to the branch and to APM and I would be proud to continue my committee membership.
John	Chrastek	I have been a member of the Branch and Committee for a number of years and wish to continue to support its continued development and those on the Committee.	I have carried out all the roles in the committee except Treasurer so can help to support new and existing committee members in the various roles that they may take on.

Stevie	Downer	Passion for volunteering & learning which I have shown throughout my career so far. I can't wait to meet people like me who are interested in making APM accessible to everyone through the various initiatives that APM undertakes. I have always been interested in shaping the profession, I am involved in the Project Data Analytics community and will always take the opportunity to put my hand up for something and deliver a product/ service that leads to real benefits. Being part of an industry recognised role in an APM branch as a committee member is a new challenge for me and would give me a greater sense of purpose in my interest to shape and represent the profession and its community. I identify further possible opportunities to support the APM following this through official roles on the London branch and through SIGs	Accessibility & breaking down barriers, I am a member of Women in Transport and regularly take part in official mentoring schemes and internal mentoring. I believe in a traditional and reverse mentoring system as we can all learn from each other; this diversity is what initiates progressive change in the profession and what I hope to cultivate in my time on the branch. I have been involved in setting up networking events throughout my career, creating business cases (defining target audiences, purposes, finance, materials, marketing etc.) and would be interested to become involved in these events and collaboration with other branches. Having become a MAPM (targeting ChPP) and having taken several APM qualifications, I believe I can offer real perspective to early careers people through mentoring, to help them better understand the APM and why they should join the project profession (outreach programme).
Daniela	Pinto	I was a volunteer with the Wessex Branch for almost two years; however, I had to stop as i was struggling with time working FT and doing my master PT. Eventually moved to London and been waiting for the nominations to open so i can continue my volunteering journey with APM	I have previously been involved in the Project Management Challenge and I would love to get it started with the London Branch with the aim to help with a national competition which has been discussed a few times (long term goal). There are so many universities in the capital and i believe this is a great experience for the students. Another topic i would like to explore is the web 3.0 and future of the project profession, so would be interested in bringing professionals to discuss this at events. Moreover I have the passion and determination to help the committee deliver events across the year.

Huw	Roberts	Having been a full member a several years I have benefitted from attending or participating in numerous events, webinars, conferences during that time. I appreciate there are never enough willing to assist in arranging these and thought it would now be a good opportunity to pay back something to the Association whilst continuing my own development and widening my network and understanding.	I bring approaching 40 years of experience in the workplace, split across 16 years of maintenance engineering in the aviation sector within BAA's airports as they were, followed by 24 years within capital project delivery. Having travelled the route, I have a passion for apprenticeships. Mentoring and developing the next generation of professionals is vital for any profession and I believe it is our 'moral duty' to enable and facilitate this progression, much like the selfless individuals who I have been so lucky to have had invest their time in my professional development. I am actively involved within my company's Graduate Development Scheme managing the progression of several Graduates and administering the scheme. Currently deployed on commission to the Environment Agency I also bring insight to their operation and values. Alongside project boards and governance panels, I have experience in committees being involved in rugby, cricket and football club committees in a variety of roles.
Rhaynukaa	Soni	I have been on the Committee for two years now and it has been am amazing opportunity to give back to the wider community. I like to use my vast network across different industries and sectors to share ideas and learning as well as collaborate for new ways of working.	I bring with me thought diversity. Having worked on major infrastructure projects as well as in the transport sector, I use my network to collaborate and share ideas.
Matthew	Tucker	I have been involved with the London Branch since 2015 and would like to continue supporting the branch. I enjoy being part of the team that puts on excellent events and want to continue supporting the APM in London.	I have a varied experience within IT working for globally recognised brands. Experience in these organisations has taught me a lot about how they approach project management differently but with similar underlying trends
Bryant	Yates	I've been on the committee for the past four years and have found it to be fun, fast paced (at times) and a great way to give back to the profession. I love working with the diverse committee to deliver events that our members want to attend and that gives them a fantastic opportunity to network.	Experience of understanding what we the committee need to do. A can do attitude. I'll take the initiative and drive for success. Previous voluntary committee experience outside APM.
